THE 1942 SHIPBUILDER

Unfold ye Covers! Let Joy and Mirth prevail! For the 1942 Shipbuilder is meant as a book of cheer in a time when this war torn world needs all the fun and happiness that can possibly come its way. In a few weeks, many of us will be engaged in the serious work of defending our country. May these pages offer a bit of diversion during anxious moments!

College English

This year we not only have been studying English literature and the usual assortment of grammar rules, but Miss Mayo also has given us much practice in outlining and oral reports. After shooing half a dozen Seniors boys from the room and Gus from Dotties side, Miss Mayo asks us to open our Handbooks. Then it develops that having used the literature book the day before, Larry, Bill, Fred, Ellen Paul, and Marjorie have left their Handbooks in their desks. Another day Miss Mayo is explaining how to outline a paper and interrupting her lecture with, "Florence," "Elizabeth," "Laural," "George," "Enid," "Jane Bates," "George," "Marilyn," and so fourth. If the lecture is especially lengthy Johnny or Rudy, on being reminded by Miss Mayo that his mind is wondering, will want to know why he has to pay attention when he has not interest in the subject. This will start Miss Mayo off on a long lecture on the virtue of paying attention. Should we be giving oral reports, Rossie will get up and tell of a disastrous flood or a perilous mountain climb in such a low, monotonous tone that Miss Mayo will tell him to try again tomorrow with more enthusiasm. When Mary's turn comes she says she can't give an oral report so Miss Mayo gives another lengthy lecture on the advantage of oral reports and the disadvantage of defeatism. Then Jane Liddell has something to say, but because she can't be heard she is ordered to the front of the room where she asks in an audible voice, "Miss Mayo, do you have an extra pencil?" All kidding aside, Miss Mayo has done her best to drill a little English into our thick skulls and unwilling spirits. JAMES ROSS, '42

"Can yuh do 'em?"

(1.) An Arab, who owns 17 camels and has three sons, dies. In his will he leaves $\frac{1}{2}$ the camels to the oldest son, $\frac{1}{3}$ of the camels to the second son, and $\frac{1}{9}$ of the camels to the youngest son. How can his will be carried out without cutting up any of the camels?

(2.) A lamp and shade together cost $1.25. The lamp alone costs $1.00 more than the shade alone. How much does the shade alone cost?

(3.) Can you give in five seconds three numbers which give the same total when added as when multiplied together?

(4.) Two bicyclists approach each other on a straight road, pedaling at 15 miles an hour. When they are 30 miles apart a horsefly alights on one bicycle, then dashes off to the other. The fly shuttles back and forth between the two bicycles at 20 miles an hour until the riders meet. How far has the fly then traveled?

(5.) A farmer has $3\frac{7}{9}$ haystacks in one corner of his field, and $4\frac{6}{15}$ haystacks in another corner of his field. If he puts them all together, how many haystacks will he have? (Answers on page 12) JAMES ROSS, '42

Foreign Languages

Part of the work in our French course consists of dictations given in French. (These passages are also used for memory work.) Very often these dictations are amusing anecdotes. Here is one which has been translated from French to English:

"THE KNOWLEDGE OF YOUTH"

A student liked to make fun of his parents. One day his father decided that it was about time to give him a well deserved lesson.

"Tell me, Antoine," said he to his son, "Give us a proof of your knowledge."

"All right," said the son. "Here are two eggs, aren't there?"

"That's true, there are two of them, son."

"And this is one of them, isn't it?" asked the son, while putting his hand on one of the eggs.

"Yes," answered the father, "That is one of them."

"And it's true isn't it that two and one are three?"

"Yes, Antoine, two and one are three."

"Then," said the son triumphantly, "There are three eggs."

"Really," said his father, "I would never have believed it if you hadn't proved it so well." Then turning to his wife he continued:

"Marie, make one egg for me and one for yourself. The third, created by the science of my son, will be for himself."

Commercial English

1. Why does Fred Hall say "I didn't do it," so often? Could it be a guilty conscience?

2. Dorothy is always so quiet. What could she be day-dreaming of?

3. When one Senior boy is excused from class, what happens to the rest of them? Maybe they're all on the Student Council.

4. John Hall never seems to hear the teacher's question. Could he be too busy listening to Christine?

5. The reason why Bill Hayes is always reading is a mystery (story).

6. What does Chappy do every night? He always looks so tired and sleepy (or could it be the English lesson?)

7. A certain girl doesn't get much English done. She spends her time playing with a birthstone (?) ring.

8. Bob Maybury's notebook must have a lot of English work in it. He seems to look in it quite often.

9. Is Norma's mind "Seituated" on her work?

10. Why does Kenny like to sit near the open door? Is it because it's hot or does he like to whistle at the girls that walk by?

11. Would Alben's work in English be as good if she didn't eat so many bags of potato chips for lunch?

PHYSICS

Any sixth period we, the Seniors and Juniors of the 1941-42 Physics Class, may be found in Room 2, studying with furrowed brow, while Mr. Huth watches over us with a stern gaze and eagle eye.

If Dot Dutton were to throw a spitball at E. P. Skelding, the professor would be sure to catch her.

When exam time rolls around Jane Liddell seems to know more about "femmes faces" than the physics problems.

If "Lizzie" would watch Bill's decimal point more carefully she might receive an A+ instead of just an A.

Bates has been doing better work now that she has been separated from Enid.

Who's the teacher? When Marilyn gets stumped she goes to Mr. Huth. When Mr. Huth gets stumped he goes to Rossie.

Why doesn't Flossie take advantage of the fact that she is sitting next to Laurel? We know that we would.

Where there's Hamblen there's an argument. Where there's an argument there's Hamblen.

As for Cassy, "nuff sed!"

Considering who sits in back of Mary (need we elucidate?) it's no wonder Mr. Huth sees more of the back of her than the front.

If the rest aren't mentioned (Hills and Bernard) it's because they are so quiet we forget they are there.

Do you wonder that Mr. Huth will heave a sigh of relief when June rolls around?

Certificates for taking shorthand at sixty words a minute were awarded to: Jeannette Strachan, Albena Adams, Anna Makowski, and Leona McManus. Albena Adams was the only member of the class to receive an award for typing at the rate of seventy words a minute.

This year there were only five members in the Office Practice Class, and in behalf of the class, I would like to say we certainly had plenty to do.

CONSUMERS' SCIENCE

Our class has been studying acids and bases. Many experiments have been tried and have come out successfully. Now we are experimenting on two certain Junior boys, namely Wyman and Mesheau. Is Mesheau as acid, as Wyman is base? Will THIS experiment be successful? The whole school and faculty are anxiously awaiting the results.

Social Studies

Social Studies under the direction of Mr. Knowlton takes up the study of the history, customs, government, and geographical outlooks of the peoples of the world.

The Seventh Grade is studying the development of government in Europe as well as in our own country. Units are given to the class to be completed in a given time. Oral discussions and tests are held each week.

The Eighth Grade studies the civilization of today and yesterday of the whole world as it is changing today. Units are also taken up in this class. The unit work trains the mind to condense material from an encyclopedia or other reference book into a complete and concise report. It not only trains the mind, but also gives the pupils a chance to learn how to use the library and to handle reference books. Pupils contribute to class discussion with oral reports on current events and special topics.

The Ninth Grade, studying Civics learns how the local cities and towns are protected and governed. Current events and discussions are held each week.

The Tenth Grade studies World History under Mr. Rogean. Their course takes them back to early ages.

The Juniors and a few Seniors are learning about the government of the United States. During each term each person has to give an oral report. It seems that the Junior Class can recite the Constitution backwards and forwards.

Under Mr. Knowlton's guidance, we will certainly be prepared for the future in our government.

At night when I go to bed,

Could it be just the wind I hear.

Boys' Basketball

With the great guidance of our new coach, Mr. Huth, Norwell enjoyed a very successful season in winning twelve out of eighteen games. The only team to surpass our feats was Duxbury, who came in first in the South Shore League. We had to share honors with Scituate for second place.

The first team was composed of: W. Turner, L. Howes, R. Fiocca, and K. Burnside, as guards. F. Dyer and J. Henderson as centers. P. Paradis, W. Hayes, R. Maybury, and S. Hardwick as forwards. Dyer our tall, lanky pivot-man was again high-scorer for the second consecutive year with 177 points. The others respectively were: Paradis with 96, Turner with 89 and Hayes with 66.

The box-scores were as follows:

Answers To "Can You Do 'Em?"

(1) Borrow a camel to make 18. Give $\frac{1}{2}$ of 18, or 9 camels to the oldest son, $\frac{1}{3}$ of 18, or 6 camels to the second son, $\frac{1}{9}$ of 18, or 2 camels to the youngest son, and return the borrowed camel.

(2) $12\frac{1}{2}$ cents.

(3) One, two, and three.

(4) Twenty miles. Since the bicyclists were pedaling at 15 miles an hour and were originally 30 miles apart, when they met they had been traveling for an hour. Accordingly, the fly, flying at 20 miles an hour, covered 20 miles regardless of how complicated its path.

(5) One big haystack.

Class of 1942 Victory Song

Tunc—"Remember Pearl Harbor"

We'll remember our school days,
When we went to Norwell High.
We will cherish them always
As the years go passing by.
All our trials and pleasures
Will be held in mem-o-ry,
And we'll fight to keep that freedom
That will mean our Victory!

Rah! Rah! Rah

We'll remember our country
As we now go from this school.
Honor, valor, and courage
Will always be our rule.
In the army and navy,
On the land and on the sea,
We will surely show that knowledge
Is the key to Victory

A Senior Excursion To Boston

It was precisely five minutes to nine when I left my humble domicile to tear up the roadway to the high school. Upon rounding the difficult curve approaching the Turner residence I saw a congregation of five or six gentlemen of the senior class in Mr. Turner's driveway. I applied the brakes gently and mastered the difficult turn into the drive. We came to the conclusion that we could not attend school on such a beautiful spring day.

We departed from the yard in search of other members of the class. When we entered the spacious Howes mansion we entered in force and discovered much to our sorrow that Kenneth had gone to school. Bill lifted the receiver of the phone and asked for the number of the school. Mr. Rogean answered and Bill posing as Mr. Burnside, asked to speak to Kenneth, but our agile principal saw through the ruse and Bill hung up hastily.

It was decided there was no help for Kenneth and that he must suffer the fate of attending school. We then proceeded to Boston where we were nearly killed several times en-route. We had hard luck finding a parking space and walked several block when we came to the R. K. O., where a good picture, Alvino Rey and the King Sisters were showing. We pooled our resources and entered the Theatre. After finding a seat we settled and prepared to enjoy ourselves. The pictures were excellent, very humorous and everyone was having a wonderful time. Later, Alvino Rey and band gave us a very good exhibition of what they could do. Then!! Came the King Sisters! First a brown haired lass entered, then another and still another. Then after a brief pause to let us collect our senses, a beautiful golden haired lass with lovely features romped onto the stage and we all let out a sigh of contentment. Although the three brunettes were lovely, the blonde held our eyes from the moment she came onto the stage until she departed. The show was over and now we had to risk the dangers of driving in Boston. Several times the occupants of my car, which consisted of Stafford, Warren, and myself closed their eyes and gave up all hope of returning to Norwell alive, but we made it.

All of us had a good time and though the punishment later was severe, we think it was worth it, but I think there will be no more such excursions of this type.

Dyer: "I drove the old car up to the toll bridge and what do you think the watchman said to me?"

Hardwick: "I don't know."

Dyer: "Fifty cents please."

Hardwick: "And what did you say when he asked for fifty cents?"

Dyer: "Sold"

A Prophecy

BY CAROL LEONARD

TIME — 1952

PLACE — Bus driving through New York.

I reached in my cluttered purse and pulled out a well-worn dollar. I handed it to the driver. Was I surprised to see George Joseph. He gave me fifty cents back even though the price was a dollar.

The bus was crowded so I took the only vacant seat. There was Betty Snowdale riding home to to her hubby, David Hills. She showed me her newspaper. On the first page was written, "Constance Bailey gets scholarship to Professor Frye's College."

After a while I asked Betty what the commotion was. She said it was just Helen Simpson (alias Torrey) trying to handle Donald Junior and Senior.

The bus swerved around and a small but lively man fell on my lap. It was none other than George Wyman. He said it was his stop and he had to hurry right home to Lillian, so he gave me his card and got off my lap.

A well matched couple got on when George got off. Carol Newcomb! Ah excuse me, MRS. ROBERT COULTER and hubby.

Oh, I wish those twins would let my hat alone. Their pretty nurse leaned over. Nancy Has-kins! I asked her who she was working for and she said "The Bennetts." "Who are they?" I asked. Of course I knew it was Clarence and the former Betty Hayes.

The bus jerked and I saw a young man with an encyclopedia walking across the street. It was Builder. I mean Mr. Builder.

We started the bus once more and a tall girl caught my eye. Who was with — why, Pauline, where did you pick up Prescott and Horace?

The bus stopped, so we all got out. I said goodbye to Betty and bumped into a blonde man! How could I help it? It was William Hubbard.

I called a cabby and jumped in. Why William Jackman, what are you doing here? I asked him to drive me to the nearest theatre. He had his radio going so I heard this flash — Jitterbug Oldmstead has just revealed middle name — Bonner.

I paid the fee and went in the theatre.

The ticket taker looked familiar and I soon found it was Louise DesJardins. I strutted in and found a seat by a small couple, Dottie and Ernest Wessman.

On the stage, came a singer. She called herself Shirley Howes. On either side of her was a girl. They called themselves Lili and Lulu. I knew when I saw them it was Kay and Bell.

A dark-haired man turned around. "I'm Clarence," he said. Jones, of course. With him was Louise Jackman.

The news began and I saw Makowski and Vayens, the two great fighters, on the screen.

After the main feature I went out into a little drugstore. The waitress brought some water which I gulped down, without noticing it was Marilyn Lambert. I gave my greetings and ordered a "coke."

Arthur West, the jerk, I mean soda jerker, made it for me. He put too much lemon in it, but that was all right.

Beside me were some newly-weds, Hall and Merita Goddard.

West put on the radio which said Leslie runs fifty yard dash in four seconds flat! Who's that coming out of the phone booth? Oh, Norma! How's Junior and Bill Kenyon? Well, here's Charlie. So goodbye.

To All Americans

By Elizabeth Jean Ross, Gr. 9

Lift your heads high, Americans!

Be proud of your native land.

Thank God for your fore-fathers' courage and faith

And honor their hero band.

Yes, honor them, Americans,

Your glorious birthright, too.

Make them glad that they lived and struggled and died

For the freedom they gave to you.

Lift your heads high, Americans!

Resolve in your hearts today,

To fight, and to work with all that you've got,

And save freedom's dying ray.

Work hard NOW, Americans,

And with God's help, you'll win,

And keep working hard after war has gone by;

Don't stop when once you begin—

Lift your heads high, Americans!

And make your country the best in the world!

"There Is No Frigate Like a Book"

It seemed as if I stood on a snow capped mountain looking out over a world unfolded before me. Below, nestled among the rolling green hills of New England, were the tiny villages. Next to this scene of peace and content were the dirt and heartbreak of a London slum. To the west a determined man, clad in deerskin and holding an old rifle in his strong hands stood by a flooded river. Behind him was a covered wagon containing his family and all their worldly belongings. Turning my eyes to the north I saw, high on a Swiss alp, a small girl and a boy outlined against a crimson sunset. It seemed that I stood there, watching the world go by, though I had not left the warm fireside — for I held in my hand a key to people's hearts, to cities, and to the world. I held a book.

Big Doings of Grade Seven

This is the first year the students of the Seventh Grade have played basketball. This season the boys of Grades Seven and Eight have played six games, won four, and lost two. The girls have played only one game. It was with Pembroke. Although Pembroke was victorious, we do not feel too bad about it as it was our first game. We hope we won't become known as the "Brooklyn Dodgers."

Much to the dislike of the pupils of Grade Seven we were put back to the old routine of all subjects in one room except for one science period a week and all sewing and physical education periods.

On Wednesday the pupils of Grades Seven and Eight have an extra period for club activities. The girls have a Dramatic Club under the supervision of Miss Mayo. (I wonder how many Ethel Barrymores or Helen Hayes will come out of this.)

The boys have a period under Mr. Knowlton's supervision.

Science, which was quite dull, has turned into an interesting subject due to the interesting talks and explanations by our new teacher and principal, Mr. Rogean.

Oh, yes, I almost forgot! We must not let our class hero go unsung. Elmer Goldman saved the life of Billy Vanyes. On Friday, February 27, Billy Vanyes, while skating, fell through the ice at Jacob's Pond. Elmer quickly pulled him out and rushed him home, where he put Billy to bed and got him a hot drink, saving him from possible pneumonia.

Uncle Sam

Who is Uncle Sam? Do you know who he is? He is our country, our flag, the stars and stripes represent him. He is our government. We, the people, elect men to run our government, a president, a vice president, and other officials. There is a congress which makes laws and says whether we will have war or not. We are the children of Uncle Sam. We have soldiers fighting for Uncle Sam. Uncle Sam has many factories making things for defense. Now do you know who Uncle Sam is?

The Painted Desert

The Painted Desert is in the state of Arizona. It is a desert with sands that are many colors. How did the sands get that way? It happened like this. The desert was once a normal desert. After a year or two the sands became all colors. The sun was so hot it caused all the sand to turn to different colors. One of the animals of the desert is the deadly rattlesnake. Its name is the side-winder that goes sideways instead of straight ahead.

David Turner, Gr. 5

Listen, my children, and you shall hear
The fate of Grade 7 in yonder year
Bennet and Le Conte, that vaudeville show,
Are playing at Carnegie hall, you know.
Janie has caught him in a net,
Who? Why Warren Ekstrom is courting her yet.
Connie Goddard a spinster remains
'Tho her heart for Billy Pearson pains.
Elmer Goldman, that man of knowledge,
Has started that joint called Elmer's College.
Eva Jackson, that popular blonde,
Has crashed the movies and way beyond.
To guess this couple is not very hard,
It's Johnnie Osborn and his little Barb.
Kitty Cummings is raising cats.
Her brother Charlie is raising rats.
Nancy? Well I've lost track of Keefe.
She's down in the south by the coral reef.
Jackie Fellini, "Miss Know-it-all,"
Has married that dark-haired James Shortall.
Agnes Higgins still loves to sew,
While husband Bobby sells mistletoe.
Little Joseph, first name's Dick,
Is in the hospital very sick.
Natalie Wilder is his nurse,
So he got better and didn't get worse.
Geraldine Henderson is the bowling queen.
She's knocked every one of those pins down clean.
Big Baby talker, Georgie Perry,
Has Fay Thomas for a secretary.
Joan Dickman now a perfect size twenty,
Is modeling clothes and selling plenty.
Lorraine McManus, a stylish stout,
With George LeCain is going out.
Crack forward is our speedy Harry.
To sporting fame our class he'll carry.
An aeroplane, oh land o' mercy,
It must have been built by Warren Hersey.

Spring is Coming

Spring is coming!
The birds are humming,
Listen to them. Hear!
Their voice crisp and clear
Saying, "Spring is here!"

Spring is coming!
The rivers are running, here and there
Going to the ocean blue
Telling their secret, too,
Saying, "Spring is here!"

Howes: "Do you believe that kissing is unhealthy?"

Dot Dutton: "I can't say — I've never —."

Howes: "You mean to say you've never been kissed?"

Dot: "I've never been sick."

* * * * *

Chap Hardwick: "You should place your hand over your mouth when you yawn."

Dyer: "What!!! and bite myself?"

* * * * *

Gus: "I see Bill's got a motor car."

Dyer: "Yes, his rich uncle gave it to him."

Gus: "Why, he told me he put all the money he had into it."

Dyer: "So he did. He bought two dollars' worth of gas."

Japs

Japs are saps, they are very bold.
They're not getting raps, I am told.
There'll be an end to all this I think.
Japs will turn pink as our bullets sink.

Kenneth Osborne, Gr. 4

Broughton: "You are my idea of a wonderful girl."

Barbara Goddard: "Well I hope you're the kind of man who likes to drive his ideas home."

* * * * *

College boy, who was arrested for speeding:
"But Your Honor, I'm a college boy."

Judge: "Ignorance doesn't excuse anybody."

* * * * *

Miss Hurley: "Torrey, analyze this sentence:
It was getting to be milking time. What mood?"

Torrey: "The cow!"

* * * * *

Mrs. Joyce: "What is a mugwump?"

Dyer: "A mugwump is a bird that sits on the fence with it's mug on one side and it's wump on the other."

* * * * *

Mrs. Slade: "What are the young man's intentions?"

Gloria: "I don't know yet. He's been keeping me pretty much in the dark."

* * * * *

Mrs. Turner: "What is a mandate?"

Arian Fowler: "It's an appointment with a boy friend."

* * * * *

Simpson: "What's the Faculty?"

Ross: "Little one, the Faculty is a body of members paid to assist the seniors in running the school."

* * * * *

Arian Fowler: "Why is a ship called a she?"

Ted Makowski: "Because like you, she's always chasing buoys."

* * * * *

Hardwick: "What in the world caused that flat?"

Dyer: "Dunno, must have been that fork in the road."

* * * * *

Mr. Knowlton: "I certainly have been pinched for money lately."

Mr. Huth: "That's odd. My wife usually kisses me when she wants money."

* * * * *

Mr. Huth: "Hazel, will you describe peat for the class?"

Hazel: "Let me see — Quite tall, dark hair, and beautiful brown eyes."

* * * * *

Licking the Japs

My daddy is out to lick the Japs,
He says they're yellow as Yellow cats.
I think they really are saps,
And I know we can lick the rats.

Congratulations On a Job Well Done

Now you are going to take your place in the business world. There was a time when you could almost always tell which man was the clerk and which was the executive by the clothes he wore. Not any more, though . . . Remick's fine styling and tailoring enables even the clerk at the bottom rung of the business ladder to achieve that smart executive look. May I help you with your outfit, soon?
